Since 1964, Confederation Centre of the Arts has enabled the appreciation and exploration of creative expression through engaging visual arts exhibitions, theatrical performances, music, dance, education, and heritage programming.

Built as a living monument to Confederation, the Centre is Canada's hub for learning, through the lens of the arts, about how this nation was formed and how our identity continues to evolve. Generations of visitors have had their lives enhanced through the Centre's visual and performing arts, education, heritage, and community engagement programs.

We need your help:

The Centre is a registered Canadian charity and a non-profit organization. Revenues from sales in our theatre, restaurant, and gift shop are simply not enough to cover the annual cost of operating Confederation Centre of the Arts, which is between $13-15 million.

The Centre depends on YOUR SUPPORT through membership, donations, and special events to raise 12-15% of our operating costs, or at least $1.5 million each year.

We have created a membership program designed to enhance the experience of those who give. We put your donations to work at the Centre, and then ensure that you are the first to enjoy its benefits.

TOTAL REVENUE

As you can see, the Centre could not operate without the generosity of its donors and sponsors!

The Centre depends on YOUR SUPPORT through membership, donations, and special events to raise 12-15% of our operating costs, or a minimum of $1.5-2.5 million each year.

The Confederation Centre Art Gallery has a focus to develop national appreciation, understanding, and enjoyment of visual arts. Our exhibitions and programming reflect on Canadian identity past, present, and future, encouraging open and ongoing conversation about the origins and evolution of our country.

“Our oldest son is in Choral Music and dance programs; our youngest has spent two seasons with the Festival as a ‘Child of Avonlea’. The Centre is one of our favourite places to spend time together, and we are richer for our experiences.”

Arts education is a key directive at Confederation Centre; we are dedicated to the education of Canada’s next generation of visual and performing artists. Our arts education programs encourage children to explore creative expression in a variety of ways, from drawing and sculpting to dancing, acting, and singing. Through school collaborations, summer camps, and year-round classes and activities, the Centre’s arts education programs introduce children and adults alike to the arts in a fun and professional setting.
