1. Introduction

Confederation Centre of the Arts

Founded in 1964 in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Confederation Centre of the Arts commemorates the historic 1864 Charlottetown Conference. The massive complex is located in the heart of Downtown Charlottetown with soaring architecture and outdoor plazas, taking up a full city block. A non-profit, charity organization, the Centre is officially recognized as Canada's memorial to the Founding Fathers. The Confederation Centre Art Gallery's (CCAG) permanent collection includes over 16,000 works of historic and contemporary art by Canadian artists. The Charlottetown Festival is noted for its first-class musicals, most famously for Guinness-record setting Anne of Green Gables−The Musical™. The Festival has run every summer since 1965, excluding 2020 due to COVID-19, producing more than 85 original musicals. The Centre operates year-round, including arts education and visual arts programs, and fall and winter concerts and performances. The theatre seats 1,100 people on two levels, and was substantially restored and modernized in 2014. #### 2. BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE

In recent years, the Centre has experienced continued growth and evolution in its programming while respectfully maintaining the philosophical and physical foundation on which it was built.

Supported by three primary pavilions (Theatre, Art Gallery, and Library), and complementary spaces including an extensive concourse and lobby, Memorial Hall, and several rehearsal and event spaces, the Centre is vibrant with activity 12 months a year.

The Centre is in the process of planning a major revitalization and renovation project. This coincides with the forthcoming relocation of the Public Library, which occupies a full pavilion within the facility. That newly free space will further support the mandate of the organization, its long-term sustainability, and further strengthen ties with various stakeholder organizations.

It is this growth and year-round vibrancy, along with the relocation of the Charlottetown Public Library that has presented the Centre with an opportunity to look beyond status quo and reimagine our spaces and identity in a way that will support artistic excellence, engage diverse communities, and promote organizational sustainability well into the future. Further to this, the Centre has adopted a key guiding principle of environmental stewardship embedding sustainability practices in infrastructure development, maintenance activities, patron services, and energy conservation initiatives.

The Centre has engaged the services of Abbott Brown Architects in Halifax as the lead designers on the project. Their work is ongoing.

The Centre's current logo was designed for the opening of the facility in 1964. Branding exercises have been undertaken internally, and brands have been established, but the need for a comprehensive overall brand, and sub-brands for each of its business lines, has been identified as a key priority for the organization.

The goal for this exercise will be to evaluate CCOA's current business lines and brand; and develop a proposal for an updated, overall brand for the organization, and any sub-brands such as performing arts, visual arts, arts education, heritage, facility rentals and development.

Key priorities identified and thus the goals for the project include:

- To better engage with potential audiences and develop greater visibility locally, regionally, and nationally.
- To encourage greater participation in Centre programming.
- To raise the profile and significance of the Centre and its mandate to potential supporters in both government and the private sector, locally and nationally.

- To better understand the current state of the brand, its reputation, and resonance, locally, regionally, and nationally.
- To update the current brand, and related sub-brands, and create a framework for their implementation and use including, but not limited to, visual identity, website positioning statements, taglines, tactics.

As the next step in the planning process, Confederation Centre will be accepting proposals in response to this RFP to develop the following deliverables:

- A review of all current branding (CCOA and all business lines) and demonstrated research on other arts organization branding.
- Two brand reputation surveys. One survey to be done internally gauging thoughts and opinions from CCOA employees. The other survey to be done externally gathering feedback from the public, and key stakeholders. Each survey is to be analyzed and a report produced with results and recommendations.
- Develop a brand strategy with goals and objectives, target audiences, key messages, action items, timelines, website changes, measurables and evaluation tools.
- Update CCOA's visual brand identity, excluding the stand-alone logo, and develop new assets, and guidelines for use.
- Develop both a marketing and a communications plan for the implementation of the new brand.
